

The Trojan Times

Graphic by Andrew Lindboom

Winter/Spring 2022 Edition

Southwestern High School's Student Newspaper

Hello Girls, Hello Musical

A Preview of This Year's Theatrical Production

By Ethan Luce

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y. -

Lights! Camera! Action?

Is Southwestern holding a school musical in front of a live audience this year?

Yes! The school will be performing "The Hello Girls" Thursday, March 10 through Saturday, March 12 in the high school auditorium.

What It's About:

"The Hello Girls" cast.

Photo Submitted by Emma Sample

This year's musical is based on the true story of women on the front lines during World War I. The show follows American Grace Banker and several other women who serve as bilingual telephone operators to change the tide of the war. They were resisted by their male allies and didn't receive much credit for their work until long after the war.

Who to Look For:

This year's female lead, senior Jackie Bielata, will be starring as Grace Banker, one of the American telephone operators. Other notable performers include Isabella Grijalva as Susan Prevot, Marly Ohl as Helen Hill, and Alyson Dalton as Bertha Hunt. Male leads and this year's antagonists, Ethan Tyger and Trenton Shuttles, are playing General Pershing and Captain Joseph Riser. See MUSICAL, Page A2

Two Southwestern Athletes Hit Tremendous 1,000-Point Milestone

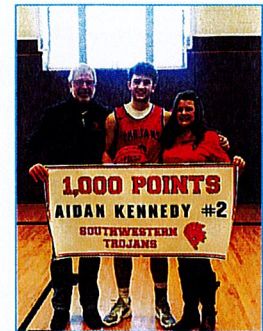

Photo submitted by Aidan Kennedy

By Dontae Hoose

MIDDLEPORT, N.Y. - Playing on a taped up, badly bruised ankle, senior Aidan Kennedy pulled up for a three-pointer during Southwestern's Feb. 26 game against Roy-hart, giving him 12 points for the night and finally breaking into the 1,000-point club here at Southwestern. The final score of the game was 60-34.

See 1,000 POINTS, Page C1

EXTRA! EXTRA! Listen All About It

In January, the staff of The Trojan Times tried their hands at broadcast journalism. Staff created podcasts about topics of their choice, complete with original scripting, music, and sound effects. Interested in hearing more? Scan the QR codes below to listen!

Freakshow

By Ezekiel Passanise

Winning or Twinning

Brendan & Ethan Luce

The Slinky Principle

Ella White, Teagan Shedd, Emily Kimball

What Is College?

Dontae Hoose, McKay Young, Spencer Kane

Key

Section	Pgs.
News	A
Opinions	B
Sports	C
Personal Profiles	D
Reviews	E

Southwestern Steps Up

Student Body Comes Together to Help Family In Need

By Ella White

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y. - Southwestern Central School was taken over by wide-crowned cowboy hats, neon sombreros and brimless beanies.

On Feb. 3, the students of Southwestern chose to wear hats to raise money for a family in Sherman. The local family, the Taylors, endured a serious house fire which left one of their children deceased and two severely burned. The family had lost nearly everything

The Southwestern High School Student Council quickly realized their district needed to step up. Ms. Anne Beck and McKay Young proposed an idea to the student body that would raise money for the family in Sherman.

"We decided on a hat day," Young said. "The individuals that wish to participate will donate $1 to the Taylor family."

The amount of money that was raised for the Taylor family was far beyond the original goal. Southwestern Central School was able to work together to help individuals within the community.

"Our initial goal was $500 which we exceeded," Ms. Beck said. "We are so proud of everyone for donating."

Innumerable students attended school with their favorite hat. Although $1 may seem small, the money added up.

"We are still counting the donations, but it looks like we raised around $2,000," Ms. Beck stated. "The donations even came from cafeteria workers, office workers and bus drivers."

This experience has proven the district wears many hats: cowboy hats, sombreros and that of being a good neighbor.

Senior Mary Rose Slater rocks her cowboy hat to support the Taylor family.

Photo submitted by Mary Rose Slater

Musical

Continued from page A1:

What Does it Take to Make a Musical?

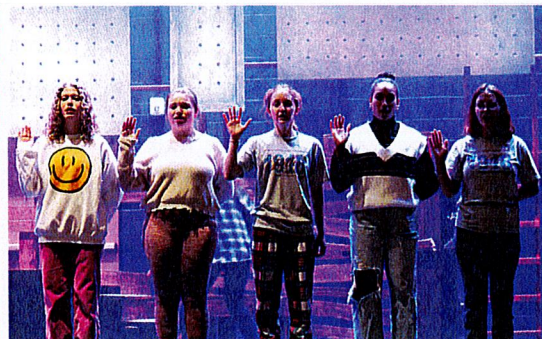

"A lot of dedication," said director Mrs. Beichner-Miller. "Musical is exactly like any sport. We have hours and hours' worth of practice and rehearsal time where we're together, and also hours of practice and rehearsal time at home. Students have to put in on their own time to make a show successful."

The musical performers are expected to master hundreds of lines, lyrics, and dance moves at a rapid pace. They spend more time in the building than some of the school's athletes. Afterwards, they practice at home to keep up with production.

"We're getting our dances and our lines memorized really fast," said Braley Lachner, one of the cast members.

When to Watch:

Nighttime shows will be 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 10 and Friday, March 11. There will be a 2 p.m. show Saturday, March 12 as well. Tickets are $8 and can be bought on the school website or at the door. See you

Scenes from "Hello Girls." Photos submitted by Emma Sample

What Are the New Mask Guidelines?

By Tucker Gesing

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y.- With masks mandates removed for schools on Wednesday, March 2, many are wondering how school and life may change. Will or should you still wear a mask? For many, this news is something to look forward to since it is access to pre-pandemic life. However, for others, it opens doors for more fear and questions.

What are the new guidelines and how will they work?

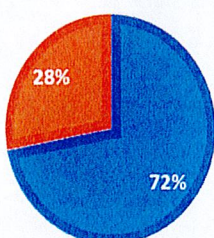

The new guidelines introduced on Sunday, Feb. 27 outlined that state-wide indoor mask mandates in schools would end on Wednesday, March 2. This announcement followed the CDC's recent statement that most people don't need to wear masks indoors or in public places unless there is a high level of COVID-19 cases. Additionally, in January, New York State saw a 98% drop in new cases of COVID-19, according to statistics by NBC New York and Gov. Kathy Hochul. This end to the mandate by Gov. Hochul means that health protocol decisions will now be transferred to the local government and schools.

Should I still wear my mask?

Wearing a mask is a personal choice that you can make yourself based of many different factors including vaccination and booster status, personal health problems, comfort levels, and overall safety opinions. The Trojan Times took to social media and surveyed over 120 students from Southwestern to see if they would wear their masks or not.

PERCENTAGE OF STUDENTS WHO PLAN ON WEARING OR NOT WEARING THEIR MASK

■ No masks ■ Masks

Many vaccinated and un-vaccinated students will choose to don or throw away their masks with this mandate, but why? Many will have their own reasons for wearing or not wearing their mask and each and every one has the right to do so.

Photo by Tucker Gesing

News From Around the World

By Emily Kimball

The War On Ukraine

UKRAINE- Tensions amongst Ukraine and Russia have escalated after Vladimir Putin, Russian President, launched an unprecedented attack against its neighboring country, Ukraine, on the morning of Feb. 24.

For months, Kremlin forces have begun to build up around Ukraine borders due to Russia's disapproval of Ukrainian interest in NATO.

Ukraine's membership in NATO would both increase NATO'S land border with Russia as well as providing Ukraine with resources to take back Crimea, a peninsula annexed by Russia, yet still considered Ukraine territory by the United Nations.

As the death toll alarmingly increases, more and more Ukrainian Citizens have begun to take shelter and evacuate their homeland.

As Russia continues its invasion, protests in support of Ukraine continue to erupt around the globe.

United Nations Climate Report

NEW YORK CITY, N.Y.- A climate report was released by the United Nations on February 28, discussing the growing issue of climate change.

According to the report, "the cumulative scientific evidence is unequivocal: climate change is a threat to human well-being and planetary health."

Scientists warn that the increase in global warming will only worsen extremes such as floods, droughts, fires, and heat waves.

Unless there is a significant reduction in CO2 and other greenhouse gas emissions in the near future, experts warn the effects of global warming may be irreversible.

2022 Winter Olympics Recap

BEIJING, CHINA- The 2022 Winter Olympics has officially come to an end, following two weeks of praiseworthy performances and captivating controversies.

This year's Olympics may unfortunately be remembered for its COVID-19 protocols as well as the doping scandal involving Russian ice skater, Kamila Valieva.

In fact, the TV ratings for this year's Winter Olympics reached an all-time low, with a 42% decrease in viewership from the 2018 Winter Games, according to The L.A. Times.

Despite setbacks, the Olympic athletes still managed to persevere, producing performances that would make Olympic history.

The U.S. finished strong with a total accumulation of 25 medals, the fifth-most following Norway, Russia, Germany, and Canada.

Student Opinions

Why More Schools Should Take Initiative Like Southwestern A Call For Diversity, Equity & Inclusion

By Hiba Munir

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y.- When walking into a school, there are things you hope to see versus what happens. You hope to see students simply be kind to each other. You hope to see acceptance among all students and staff no matter how they look, think, or identify. Now that's what we hope versus reality.

This is where DEI comes into place. Southwestern has just started the development of DEI, and I believe all schools will benefit from this practice.

What exactly is DEI? DEI stands for diversity, equity, and inclusion. DEI has been around for a while and is a crucial way the workplace and schools can build safe and equitable environments. Schools all over need to implement DEI. Educating staff and students on serious issues will help create a better future as well as create opportunities for all people within a school district.

Over the past few years, social and ethnic issues have risen in our country. These issues have led to many people taking to the streets to protest and raise awareness. As these issues come up in society, we need to find ways we can create awareness in our school education system.

Mrs. Donahue, the Superintendent of Southwestern Central School District, has recently made it a priority to push for this DEI program within our district.

"Our committee will be looking at how we want our school to be inclusive and if we should do more cultural responsive practices... especially in our curriculum," Mrs. Donahue said. Since challenges will arise by putting this system in place, she added, "We all have biases... we have to confront our biases and talk about them and stepping out of all of our comfort zones will be a challenge as a whole district."

Mrs. Donahue's initiative has been a huge step towards what can help educate students, but it doesn't stop with her. Students like Isabella Grijalva have also taken a new leap in our schools DEI concept.

Grijalva is a senior at Southwestern, who many view as a caring leader within the student body. Grijalva established a club in 2020, Allies for Diversity, with the support of the school's staff.

"As kids have come up with me these issues, I saw I needed to do something about it," Grijalva said on the club. "So me and my friend had the idea to create a club where kids could feel safe, and the club is meant for absolutely everyone."

Grijalva and many other students see the need for a program like DEI. "It will for sure improve the school atmosphere and better education," Grijalva added. "I think DEI is needed."

DEI will bring us one step closer to a school system that will truly benefit every single person. I am certain all schools need to adapt DEI. Mrs. Donahue and many others are "hoping we learn to really love each other and come together again" as DEI flourishes in schools.

The Pronoun Problem

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR
Anonymously Published

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y.—We all have them, we all use them, we all learned what they meant in elementary school, but it seems that even though they're so integrated into society - are we really educated about pronouns?

When asked, one of the parents of a Southwestern student, Janelle Newcomb, had said that there were "maybe 3 different genders...he/him, she/her, they/them, maybe a few more."

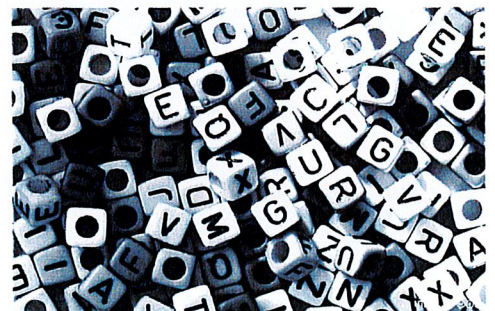

While this is what most people think, there are currently 78 commonly used gender pronouns. Many people feel that the binary genders simply don't represent them, and that's completely normal.

Everyone uses pronouns, so everyone should have a chance to get educated about pronouns and their gender identities, even if they identify with the gender they were assigned at birth.

"I feel like somewhat of an outcast," said one non-binary student, who asked to remain anonymous. "I wish more people would educate themselves and be more understanding."

Once people become more educated, hopefully they will learn that pronouns aren't some made up TikTok trend or something the LGBT community has decided to make a big deal out of. They are important for people's identities and need to be recognized as such.

If people were to be more educated about pronouns and how people express themselves, it would be beneficial for everyone in the long run.

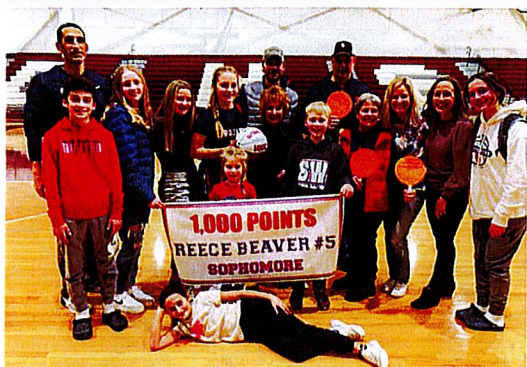

Photo submitted by Reece Beaver

1,000 POINTS

Continued from page A1: Likewise, a few weeks prior in Dunkirk, sophomore Reece Beaver smashed her way through the 1000-point milestone with a 33-point game against Dunkirk, leading the Lady Trojans to an 82-22 victory over the Marauders.

“For both a boy and a girl to hit the 1000-point mark in the same season is extremely rare,” said Mr. Sirianni, assistant girls basketball coach, highlighting the gravity of the achievement.

Mr. Sirianni is right. Through the years at Southwestern, very few players have broken onto the list. Kennedy is only the eighth player to achieve this feat for the boys, and Beaver is the fifth player for the girls.

“I can’t think of anybody more deserving, especially after everything he went through last year with the shortened season and us missing playoffs,” said Mr. Emley, the boys basketball coach, on Kennedy’s landmark achievement. “It was something we were hoping would happen with not as many games as we should have had.”

Like many other sports teams, the boys and girls basketball teams were faced with a shortened season amid the pandemic last year, making the feat even more impressive. According to Mr. Sirianni, by the end of her sophomore season Beaver will be the all-time leading scorer for girls basketball here at Southwestern.

While Beaver looks to keep entertaining the crowds here at Southwestern for years to come, Kennedy is gearing up to further pursue his academic and athletic career at Pace University after committing to the Division II college for football a week prior to the milestone.

Wrestlers Represent at State Championships

By Brendan Luce

ALBANY, N.Y. - Imagine competing in a large arena, surrounded by the roar of the crowd, adrenaline surging through your veins as you face off against your opponent. You only had a glimpse of the New York State wrestling championship.

Southwestern’s boys varsity wrestling team sent four wrestlers to these very championships on Thursday, Feb. 24, putting up a spectacular performance.

Senior Dontae Hoose placed third at in the 215-pound weight class.

“It’s a major accomplishment,” Hoose said about states. “[I] had to take it in because it was the last time I’ll be there. It’s a really big experience and it’s really impactful.”

Eighth grader Carmine Calimeri took sixth place in the 102-pound weight class.

Sophomore Kenji Walters didn’t place in the 110-pound weight class, and neither did eighth grader Tavio Hoose, but they still put up strong performances for the Trojans.

“It was a fun experience... I was lucky to be there,” Walters said, when asked about how it felt to compete.

How difficult is it to get to the state championships? Mr. Pagett, the wrestling coach at Randolph High School, described it as “insanely difficult.”

“They take the top two of every weight class... which makes it really hard because you have to come in first or second in your section [at the sectional meet],” Mr. Pagett said.

Only 22 wrestlers advance from the sectional meet to the state meet.

But that’s not all. One must be in the top five of their weight class in the class meet in order to qualify for the sectional meet. The road to states wasn’t easy, but four members of Southwestern’s team successfully made it.

Walters, Calimeri, and Tavio Hoose will return next year to have another shot at returning to states.

Photo submitted by John Hoose

Winter Sports Highlights

A quick spotlight on the great seasons and accomplishments of our Trojan athletics this winter season.

Varsity Boys Basketball:

League Record: 5-5

Overall Record: 10-13

Aidan Kennedy: First Team League All-Star, 1033 career points (20.9 PPG)

Matt Pannes: Second Team League All-Star (14.9 PPG)

Jason Ni: Second Team League All-Star (6.9 PPG)

Varsity Wrestling:

League Record: 4-2

Overall Record: 6-2

5 Individual Class C Champions

102 lbs. Carmine Calimeri: Sixth in NYS

110 lbs. Kenji Walter: State Qualifier

172 lbs. Tavio Hoose: State Qualifier

215 lbs. Dontae Hoose: Third in NYS

Varsity Girls Basketball:

League Record: 9-1

Overall Record: 15-6

Tied for League Championship

Reece Beaver: 1000 points, 499 points this season, League MVP Award

Ellie Lawton: Second Team League All-Star

Kira Ricker: Second Team League All-Star

Bella Sirianni: League Honorable Mention

Maddie McIntyre: League Honorable Mention

Varsity Boys Swim (Combined w/ Frewsburg):

League Record: 6-0

Overall Record: 11-0

Chautauqua County Champions

Section 6 Champions

Gannon Moore: State Qualifier

JV Boys Basketball:

League Record 6-4

Overall Record— 10-9

Jaydon Work scored 171 points

Brody Larson scored 154 points

For more photos from this winter sports season, check out the back page!

Personal Profiles

Pragmatic Putney

Mr. Putney sitting with his dog, Gus.
Photo submitted by Mr. Putney

By Oliver Hagel

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y. - Some may call him a visionary. Some may call him a mathematical pioneer. Some may call him a genius. No, it's not Elon Musk: It's Mr. Putney!

Mr. Putney plays a pivotal role in the math department of Southwestern and is a favorite of many students. His subtle humor, divergent teaching style and his ability to relate his topics to real life keeps his classes engaging for his students.

"Mr. Putney's classes are difficult, but the way he teaches, I feel, makes it a little bit easier and more engaging," says McKay Young, a statistics student of Mr. Putney's. "He has a great focus on really teaching kids stuff they should know about college life and adulthood, so I feel like the stuff he taught us about debts and college will really stick with me."

Mr. Putney feels math should be taught in a way that will set students up in the future. If students are not using these skills in the future, why take the math class at all? He feels more topics that are important to real life should be taught in schools.

"The only reason that we're here is to learn something we will apply in the future, otherwise it is just theoretical and that seems like I'm wasting your time," says Mr. Putney. "I do think math is important from a problem-solving perspective; however, I do hope I can contribute more in a financial literacy mathematical way."

Mr. Putney, who was formerly an industrial engineer, was inspired to teach by his wife who got great amounts of joy out of teaching. Math was the best fit for Putney with his engineering degree.

Putney believes the classes statistics and problem solving should be encouraged for students to take, as they teach students valuable information about life outside of school. These classes are electives which are often looked over by students even though these classes teach many useful skills for life after high school.

Lachner Goes Above and Beyond

By: Mia Turnbull

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y. - If you were to look up the word lazy in the dictionary, the last thing you would find is a picture of Braley Lachner.

For a 17-year-old, Lachner is exceptionally accomplished and a very active member of his school and community. Lachner is an Eagle Scout, has started a jazz band, and is a very talented member of the high school orchestra. He also takes a highly rigorous course load and plans to attend RIT in the fall.

Only around 5% of Boy Scout members reach the Eagle Scout rank, and Lachner is one of them. To reach Eagle rank, several requirements must be achieved, such as several letters of recommendation, serving in a leadership position for six months, and earning 21 merit badges. Lachner's mom, Ms. Tammy Lachner, described earning merit badges as writing and researching 21 essays.

"Braley has always been a goal setter," Ms. Lachner said. "In first grade, he set the goal of Eagle Scout, and he obtained that last year."

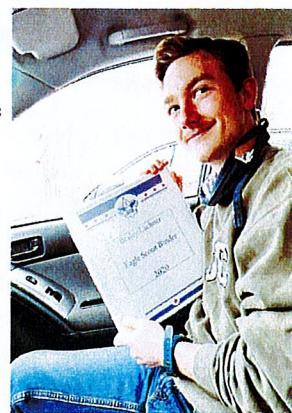

On top of playing the upright bass in the high school orchestra, Lachner also enjoys playing the guitar. But, he said one of his proudest musical accomplishments is that he started a jazz band at school. His goal of creating this jazz band was to give fellow musicians at Southwestern a professional musical experience.

"I started the jazz band at the school, and that was a big thing," Lachner commented. "Now I've stepped back and advise them and make sure they're doing good; they're amazing guys."

Along with a challenging advanced course load, Lachner has chosen to expand his knowledge by taking an AP independent study course in physics, taking math classes all the way to Calculus Four through JCC, and listening to lectures on Massachusetts Institute of Technology's open course.

Lachner is an extremely well-rounded individual who goes above and beyond his school community. Academically, Lachner takes every opportunity to expand his knowledge which he often shares with others through tutoring services. Lachner takes his extracurriculars extremely seriously and gets other people involved in the school and the community.

Lachner ended his interview on an inspirational note: "Your time is valuable, so learn how to invest it. Learn to live successfully and peacefully."

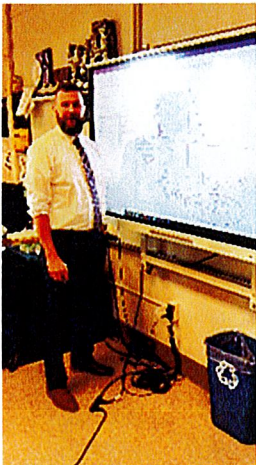

Lachner with his Eagle Scout folder.
Photo submitted by Braley Lachner

Throwing The Frisbee

A Personal Profile on Mr. Frisbee

By Spencer Kane

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y.- When you think of a frisbee, you wouldn't think of a math-driven, sport-loving, Lego-connoisseur teaching algebra and precalculus, but here at Southwestern, our Frisbee isn't thrown. Mr. Frisbee is a fifth-year math teacher at Southwestern Central High School and has always been a great educator and person, but there are still things you may not know about Mr. Frisbee.

Mr. Frisbee is a beloved math teacher at Southwestern High School.

Photo by Spencer Kane

When he arrived at Southwestern five years ago, Mr. Frisbee wasn't as popular as he is now. To solve this, he involved himself in a number of activities such as coaching track and field, helping out with football concessions, and running the school's ski club. Mr.

Frisbee is now regarded as one of the most friendly and helpful teachers in the school.

As a teacher, Mr. Frisbee is known by students for being very relatable and helpful with whatever they need. Senior student Brooks Turcotte shared his fondness for Mr. Frisbee's precalculus class.

"I like how he tries to get to know each student in a different way, and then relate to them in his teaching," Turcotte said.

Many other students also agree with Turcotte's opinion.

Arguably, Mr. Frisbee's biggest contribution to Southwestern would be his involvement in the Southwestern High School Ski Club. Mr. Frisbee is the president of the club and runs everything from bus arrangements to monitoring students on the mountain.

"It's an opportunity for students to go skiing," Mr. Frisbee said of Ski Club. "We go on Fridays and we take school transportation. We stay for six hours or so and give kids an opportunity to ski."

He also mentioned that students could buy discounted tickets through the school affiliated Holiday Valley store.

Although ski season is coming to an end, don't be afraid to ask Mr. Frisbee about next year's ski club.

FINANCIAL COLUMN

with Southern Chautauqua FCU

Meet Southwestern's Very Own Federal Credit Union

By McKay Young

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y. - "Wait, we can make deposits?"

"We can take out a loan here in school?"

"I had no idea we could intern here!"

These are the responses The Trojan Times received while inquiring if Southwestern students knew about the school's credit union.

In April of 2017, the Southern Chautauqua Federal Credit Union opened a branch in our school, located in the social studies wing. Unlike banks, federal credit unions are nonprofit, locally-owned financial institutions.

What students don't understand about finances, according to John Felton, CEO of Southern Chautauqua Federal Credit Union, is that "life isn't about how much money you make, but about how much money you have."

As students who are about to begin their next chapter, it's important to learn to use money wisely.

"Pay yourself first and start that habit young and then it will carry through life," Mr. Felton added.

Southwestern's SCFCU branch is run by Ms. Edith Parker, who is available daily from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. to assist students.

"We have a great student account program, that no one else offers, for students ninth grade and up," Ms. Parker said. She also added that internships and learning opportunities are available for all interest high school students.

For more financial information and to get involved, stop by to talk to Ms. Parker in Room 210 today.

Ms. Parker runs the SCFCU branch at Southwestern.

Submitted photo

SOUTHERN CHAUTAUQUA
FEDERAL CREDIT UNION

REVIEW: Meditation Miracle, The Somadome

Somadome located in the library.
Photo by Teagan Shedd.

By Teagan Shedd

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y.- Have you been feeling stressed lately? Do you need time to relax? Are you having trouble focusing? If so, visit the spaceship located in the library... well, not actually. In November, the Southwestern High School library introduced a new meditation area: the Somadome.

Methods of meditation have recently risen to popularity to reduce negative emotions, build skills to reduce stress, and increase patience and tolerance. Somadome's goal was to create a safe space to go and access safe space and a world of tranquility within a 20-minute timeframe. The Somadome does this by using LED color and light therapy, binaural beat meditation, and magnetic therapy to create an environment for people to relax and recharge.

I decided to give this spaceship a try. When I entered the Somadome there was a comfortable seat, noise cancelling headphones, calming LED lights and a screen to choose a specific meditation goal. Initially, there were four settings to pick from, including physical wellness, mental performance, going inward, and attract intentions. All these options include descriptions beneath to better explain the purpose. Once I clicked on my intention, the screen offered a list of meditative subcategories. I've been feeling very tired and worn down lately, so

I chose my intention to improve my physical wellness and recharge.

While in the Somadome, it was very relaxing and a great way for me to close my eyes and let my mind escape. After the Somadome, I noticeably felt a difference in my mood and energy levels. I was happier, energized, and ready to get to work during the school day.

Overall, I would give the Somadome a 10/10. I highly recommend giving it a try if you've been worn down lately. To try the Somadome, go down to the library and see Mrs. Wright to schedule your 20-minute session to relax and recharge!

REVIEW: Is "Drip Season 4Ever" Pushin P?

By: Gabby Wigren

WEST ELLICOTT, N.Y.-I'm sure you've heard the saying "pushin P" or even seen the parking emoji  being used all over the internet. You've probably thought to yourself, what does this mean? The phrase, written stylistically as "pushin P," ultimately has different interpretations of itself, but Atlanta rapper Gunna, who created the saying, explained that P originally meant "player." Later, he also explained that "pushin P" can be interpreted as a positive saying, describing something as "good" or "valid." On Jan. 7, Gunna released a new album called "Drip Season 4Ever" and on this album released a song titled "pushin P" (feat. Young Thug). Lyrically, this song describes everything in Gunna's life that is "pushin P." Naturally, then, the question must be asked: is Gunna's new album itself "pushin P"?

This album includes 20 songs with features from other popular rappers such as Young Thug, Drake, Lil Baby, and Kodak Black. After listening to the album, I created a rating system out of 's to describe how "pushin P" each song is. The rating system goes from zero 's to five 's, with zero 's being the worst score and five 's being the best. You can view how I rated each song below.

This album was overwhelmingly average. The songs were generally short, so they were easy to listen to, but the songs were repetitive and boring. There were some songs that I did enjoy, such as "thought I was playing," "a lotta cake," "25k jacket," "too easy," and "die alone." But unfortunately, I couldn't give any of them five 's. I do really enjoy Gunna's music, but I definitely would prefer to listen to one of his more popular albums such as "Drip Hard" or "Wunna."

private island-pushin Ppoohie gown-mopthought I was playing (feat. 21 Savage)- P power (feat. Drake)- how you did that-alotta cake-
 livin wild-
 you & me (feat. Chlöe)-

south to west-
 25k jacket (feat. Lil Baby)- too easy (feat. Future)- idk that b (feat. G Herbo)- flooded-life of sin (feat. Nechie)- die alone (feat. Yung Bleu)- missing me-
 so far ahead > empire-too easy (Remix) (feat. Future & Roddy Rich)- 